

The Environment LIBGuide

Name	Category	Author/ Creator (If Applicable)	Year (If Applicable)	Description
de Bath, Monica	Artist			Ecological and socially engaged arts projects include Creative Rathangan Meitheal, 'Tar Isteach' Bealtaine Commission 2019/20 with Ground Up Artists Collective and Creative Associate with Creative Schools, an Arts Council and Department of Education initiative.
Fitzgerald, Cathy	Artist			Fitzgerald draws inspiration from scientific research, in particular in relation to ecology and the complexity of ecosystems.
Holten, Katie	Artist			Holten's agricultural, environmental and architectural installations comment on the fragility of contemporary life.
Horrigan, Michele	Artist			Michele Horrigan is an Irish artist and curator. Her installation, photographic and video artworks keenly explore narratives and potentials of environment and place.
Muine Bheag Arts Festival	Festival			Artist-run festival in the rural town of Muine Bheag, Co. Carlow. Grass Roots was the first public programme initiated by Muine Bheag Arts, situated in public spaces. Sprawling across the fields, river banks and buildings it utilised the town's infrastructure to host a temporary network of offsite projects, public interventions and events.
Robinson, Tim	Artist			English artist, writer and cartographer Tim Robinson studied mathematics at Cambridge and worked as a visual artist in Istanbul, Vienna and London among other places. In 1972 he moved to the Aran Islands and began writing and making maps.
Woodland Symposium, Interface studio and residency programme (Galway Arts Centre)	Group			A team of artists have been invited to reflect on the planned restoration of Sitka Spruce to native woodland. They are being led by ecologist Marie Louise Heffernan and archaeologist Michael Gibbons. The intention of the project is to initiate a slow-art response with longevity, which will evolve with the slowly changing ecology of the site. The group of artists will return year on year, with artists dipping in and out over the years.